

JAPS LOSING HEAVILY IN INVASION OF JAVA

Deepest Spearhead Thrust is Believed Cut Off From Base

Associated Press War Editor
BY CLYDE A. FARNSWORTH

The United Nations' counter-offensive against the Japanese invasion of Java has "developed satisfactorily," it was officially but earnestly announced at Bandoeng today and one official report suggested that the deepest of the enemy's three spearheads had been sheared off.

Details of the counter-stroke, however, remained an official secret.

The immediate goal of the defense was to shatter the invaders before they could be reinforced from the sea. The invading forces were reported to have suffered enormous losses already.

A special Dutch communique said that nearly all the Japanese lighters engaged in landing troops and tanks from 20 transports yesterday near Rembang, easternmost of the three invasion points were sunk in swooping attacks by Dutch fighting planes.

A tank was fired while being unloaded and fell into the sea. Others, landed, were set afire. The fuel tanks of the machines were punctured and set afire by machine-gun strafing.

A Reuters dispatch from Bandoeng, reporting British troops in action against the foe, said there was reason to believe that Allied forces had knifed through the supply line of a Japanese column which had driven 40 miles inland to capture Soebang.

Soebang, less than 30 miles northeast of Bandoeng, headquarters of the United Nations command, fell to the Japanese within the first 24 hours of their invasion.

As British imperials, Americans and Filipinos were fighting only delaying actions in Burma, and the Philippines, the present main effort of the United Nations pivoted on Java, island keystone of the Dutch East Indies.

A London military commentator said that the British ship line holding their Sittang river line, and that the Japanese still were unable to organize a new offensive.

It was conceded, however, that the enemy probably could outflank the Sittang river line on its north and knife through the railway leg of the Burma road.

Rangoon, now deserted by all but soldiers, looters and incendiaries, has been virtually given up. As a port of entry for supplies to the battling Chinese it already had been nullified.

From the Bataan peninsula, General MacArthur reported that his forces had been bombed by three two-engine planes which "may have been German-built," thus suggesting that Japan might now be using her reserves of planes, some of which the war department believes to be German made.

Bataan ground operations had come to a virtual standstill in the past 24 hours.

Stabbing again into the Indian Ocean, Japanese naval planes were reported by Tokyo to have made their first attack on Christmas Island, a pinpoint British possession, about 220 miles south of the western end of Java.

With the bloody fight raging in Java, the United Nations' last barricade against the Japanese drive toward Australia, representatives of Australia, New Zealand and other United Nations reached important decisions on "new principles of high strategy," a Melbourne dispatch said.

The Dutch reported that warships and planes of the United Nations in three days of terrific assaults sank or damaged at least 27 ships out of an invasion armada of 50 transports and 20 warships off Java. Dutch loss of two cruisers and two destroyers was acknowledged.

Rangoon, March 2.—(P)—The British command indicated tonight that its lines were holding unchanged along the Sittang river, facing a growing number of Japanese apparently preparing for a new assault toward Rangoon and Pegu.

London, March 2.—(P)—British patrols ranging along the Sittang river fought today to break up feeler thrusts by Japanese forces massed in gathering strength for a drive across the river toward virtually deserted Rangoon, the broad Irrawaddy, and the approaches to India.

The Japanese radio reported that, for the second time, the invaders had struck beyond the battle lines with aerial attacks in the Indian ocean.

The broadcast said Japanese naval bombers raided a radio station and "base facilities for the Letter From Chief of Staff in Connection With Military Appropriation Bill, Says it is Time for United States to Proceed to Carry the War to the Enemy

GERMAN-BUILT PLANES REPORTED ON BATAAN

Washington, March 2.—(P)—The senate passed and sent back to the house a $32,762,737,900 military appropriations bill today after being informed by Gen. George C. Marshall, chief of staff, that "we must proceed with the business of carrying the war to the enemy."

Approval of the measure on a voice vote came quickly after Senator Austin (R-Vt.) had read to the senate a letter from Marshall explaining that the army must disregard some pleas for soldiers to guard continental installations because it could not permit "the greater portion of our armed forces and our valuable material to be immobilized within the United States."

Forecasting isolated air raids on this country, General Marshall said such forays might constitute a part of a plan to prevent American efforts to "engage our planes and ground troops so far as practicable, offensively in distant theaters."

The war department reported today that General Douglas MacArthur's Philippine forces were bombed by enemy planes with unusual markings which "may have been German-built."

The raids, made behind the defenders' lines on the Bataan peninsula, were local and failed to inflict damage, a communique said. Three two-engine planes were said to have had unusual markings, being painted black with white crosses on the wings.

With the communique said, it is believed to have had German-built planes in reserve.

Ground operations on the peninsula meanwhile divided to a virtual standstill in the past 24 hours, the war department advised.

The capital braced itself once more for bad tidings today as it waited with unconcealed concern for further news of the desperate fight being waged to hold Java in the teeth of an all-out Japanese invasion assault.

MILITARY PAY BILL DEBATED

New and Potentially Explosive Issue Appears on Legislative Horizon As Congress Begins Third Month Immersed in War-Time Problems

COMMITTEE NEARING SHOWDOWN ON TERMS

Washington, March 2.—(P)—A new and potentially explosive issue—increased pay for men in the armed forces—appeared on the legislative horizon today as congress began its third month deeply immersed in wartime problems and controversies.

The pay question threatened to become a live legislative problem just when congress was trying to complete repeal action on the troublesome self-pension law and to reach a settlement on the controversy over price regulations for farm products.

In introduced by Senator Johnson (D-Colo.), the military pay bill has been the subject of intermittent "hearings" since last November. It had members of the senate military committee said they were now nearing a showdown on its terms.

Johnson originally proposed comprehensive basic increases from privates and seamen to generals and admirals, but several committee members predicted that if any bill finally was laid before the senate it would provide benefits only for those in the ranks, possibly (From Page Seven)

Philadelphia, March 2.—(P)—The Pennsylvania legislature returned today for the third week of a special wartime session as varying reactions to Governor James' offer of compromise on his war powers bill indicated a right was in store for the proposal.

The governor, in a letter to each of the general assembly members over the week-end, answered criticism of his measure to authorize suspension or modification of any law found to be hindering the war effort, on recommendation of the State Defense Council.

He expressed willingness to have the legislature list the subject matter of laws which might thus be nullified until April, 1943.

The compromise, in the opinion of Roy Homer Brown (D-Alleg.), left the bill "just where it was before." Brown had suggested that, as an alternative to James' proposal, the legislature remain in session to act on any laws needing alteration. Other substitutes for the governor's bill were reported under consideration in both branches. (Turn to Page Seven)

One—the apprehension of an estimated 75,000 to 100,000 enemy aliens who failed to apply for certificates of identification; and

DEFENSE COMMITTEE READY FOR OFFICIAL BLACK-OUT TONIGHT

Warren county's first wartime practice black-out will be held tonight from 9:00 to 9:15 o'clock, with every community in the county taking part.

Officials of the Warren County Council of Defense, headed by Chairman Allen M. Gibson, today made a last-minute appeal to all residents to cooperate in the 15-minute black-out, in order that a complete check-up may be made on air raid defenses here.

In Warren borough the warning signal for the black-out will start at 8:45 o'clock, being sounded by sirens on the police car, motorcycle, fire department emergency truck and local ambulances. Immediately upon hearing the signal, residents should turn off all lights which may be seen from the outside and leave them extinguished until the "all clear" signal is sounded at 9:15.

In other communities, fire sirens will be used to sound the "alert" before the black-out, as well as the "all clear" at the end.

During the black-out tonight, certain defense industries, under positive orders, will not turn off their lights. Local civilian defense officials have requested that this information be made public, since the government is extremely anxious for production to continue uninterrupted, and in the case of certain industries in Warren county, the fire hazard would be multiplied many-fold by a black-out.

This explanation is made in order that the public will not gain the erroneous impression that these companies are not cooperating or that they are spoiling the black-out trial.

On the contrary, those defense plants which operate 24 hours a day and which will not black-out already have a trained force in each of their plants at all times ready to take care of a real emergency. Some of these defense plants have received instructions to submit plans for complete blackout, and others will undoubtedly receive them shortly. It is believed, however, that all of the defense plants have even now either perfected their complete black-out schedules and appointed their black-out crews, or are working diligently on this project.

Police, fire crews, auxiliary police and air raid wardens will be on duty tonight during the black-out and the public has been requested to cooperate with any of these officers in any way which might be requested.

NEW TELEPHONE DIRECTORY TO BE MAILED SOON

Into the mail next week will go approximately 9,000 copies of the new Bell Telephone directory for delivery to subscribers in this vicinity starting March 9.

Horace M. Stevenson, district manager for the Bell Company, said that this was about 300 more copies than were in the initial delivery of the preceding issue.

Included in the new book will be more than 8,100 alphabetical listings, an increase of about 400 over the last issue.

The new directory will be delivered to subscribers in the following exchange areas: East Branch, Russell, Tidoute, Tionesta, Warren, West Hickory, Youngsville, Kane, Leeper, Ludlow and Marienville.

Plans are being made by the Warren County Motor Club to salvage old automobile license plates. It was announced today by L. E. Seavy, manager.

The old plates will be disposed of as scrap metal for the use of war industries.

All automobile owners are being asked to take their discarded license plates to the office of the motor club in the Exchange Hotel lobby here.

A request also was made for service stations and garages which change license plates to save the old tags for collection by representatives of the motor club unless the owners take the plates to the office personally.

The Chinese practiced the tanning of hides to preserve them and to make them stronger and more pliable 3000 years ago.

When It's Maple Sugar Time in Pennsylvania

It's maple syrup time in Pennsylvania and these pictures show the various processes from the time the sap is taken from the sugar maples, transferred to tanks, hauled to the sugar house, and there boiled down. You can almost smell the heavy, sweet fragrance of the liquid without which hotcakes just aren't hotcakes.

Hiking Club Enjoys 80th Sunday Outing

The 80th hike of the Allegheny Hiking Club yesterday afternoon was another new and pleasant experience.

The hikers drove to the River Road Filling Station where cars were parked. Walking up the highway on Route 59 to the hollow near Wardwell the group ascended the hill over woods roads, bearing right along the ridge through some interesting rocks and over loose roads and paths, eventually leading down hill into Brown Run within a quarter of a mile of the starting point, covering a little more than six miles. Many animals tracks in the snow were visible, including woods mice, squirrel, porcupine, rabbit, deer, and one deer with a broken leg was sighted.

The snow on the hemlock trees and numerous pretty views of the river valley added to the scenic beauty and a most enjoyable time was reported by all those participating.

COLLECTOR TO GIVE HELP ON INCOME TAXES

Taxpayers were reminded today that a deputy collector of internal revenue will be stationed at the post office in Warren, room 23, from Wednesday, March 4, through March 7, and again from March 9 through March 14 and on Monday, March 16, for the purpose of assisting persons with the filing of income tax returns.

It has been pointed out that due to the large number of taxpayers who have as yet not filed returns, more people can be served if taxpayers first decide whether to use the simplified form or form 1040. After this has been determined, as much information as possible should be entered on the form in by the taxpayer, such as printing the name and address, etc.

Every possible assistance will be given to the taxpayers by the deputy collector. It was stated that many more people can be handled if all information possible is entered on the forms. In cases where the taxpayer is in doubt as to where items of income and deductions are to be inserted, this information should be listed on a separate piece of paper so that time may be saved.

Office hours are from 8:30 a. m. to 5:00 p. m. except Saturdays, when the office will be open from 8:30 a. m. to 1:00 p. m.

Chapter 29
Convinced

AS IN a drowning man's last conscious moments, Sharon reviewed the events of the past weeks as they flashed rapidly across the screen of her mind. Of course—why hadn't she discovered the clues to all this, learned the true picture long since! Mr. Goodwin's secrets, his strange moods, his mysterious and unaccountable disappearances. And the Countess and her strange warnings! That second trip to the deserted little cabin should have opened her eyes. And her instinctive confidence in Tom Stafford should have weighed heavier in her thinking than all of Mr. Goodwin's silver-tongued persuasion!

She looked up at Tom now. "I've been pretty stupid, haven't I?"

He cocked an eyebrow at her. "Have you?"

"I believed Mr. Goodwin absolutely without really knowing why. I guess, he seemed so—so much gentleman, so kind to me and to Dennis." She went painfully back over the whole story. "Even when I felt sure you were not, could not be the desperate criminal he said you were—"

Tom bowed. "Thanks, lady."

"I let him argue me back into believing what he said. I was flattered. I gave him the credit of all the force of his arguments, said I was—intelligent and would be loyal." She tried to laugh at herself a little. "Intelligent, all right!"

Tom smiled but his eyes held no humor. "You mean you would have been as smart as he said if you hadn't gotten caught?"

"Surely you don't think I knowingly tried to help a—a foreign agent?" Tom couldn't believe she had wanted to help get valves to Germany.

But, evidently he did! He only shrug now. "All I know for sure is that I gave you every possible chance to get out of the racket—and you refused."

"But I didn't know it was a racket. Tom, you must believe that."

He looked at her a moment. Then, matter-of-factly, "I have to believe what I believe to be right—not what I'd like to believe."

"But I tell you I had no idea what had happened to those valves," she persisted, "I was threatening as she felt herself blocked by his stubborn indifference. Mr. Goodwin told me they had fallen into your hands, that you were an 'enemy' agent, that you—Oh, I see it all so plainly now. How could I have been so dense!"

Tom not at all sure you were—or are—the least bit dense, my sweet," he said dryly.

And this time his flippant little endearment really did bring tears. Biting her lips, Sharon got up, crossed to the tiny portfolio, pretended to look over it while she regained control of herself. On the distant shore, an occasional light twinkled. It was still dark as a pocket but the wind had died down, left the ocean to roll into smooth, black swells.

"Don't cry about it," came Tom's advice over her shoulder. "Even if that Hart got caught, you know, And smarter girls than you might have been taken in by Goodwin's smooth line. You probably stood to gain a nice little 'bonus.' And, if you aren't too fussy about loyalties, I suppose it's easy enough."

Chin Up

THAT did it. Banishing tears. Sharon came back to the table, chin up, her eyes sparkling dangerously.

"I happen to be very fussy about loyalties," she began, "not to care about making money dishonestly," she said biting the words off evenly. "I have been duped by a clever impostor. So far as I know, nothing that I have done has actually contributed any vital information to the enemy. I see now that what I thought was a flattering promotion was merely a desperate man's attempt to distract attention. I'm sorry I was simple enough to fall for his flattery. What can I do or say now to prove my sincerity?"

Tom moved close enough to rest his hands on her shoulders. "A nice little speech, Sharon. But you can't do or say anything that would make me trust you any farther than I could throw a piano."

"But why, Tom? Why won't you believe me?"

"Because, if I were in your shoes, I'd be making the same play that you are. It's the only one you can make under the circumstances," he said coolly. "You're caught. You've been in a position to know everything Goodwin was doing. You've consistently thwarted every effort to get that information for the government. You've even got your kid brother in on the deal. Naturally, your best bet now is to pretend innocence, gather what dope you can from me, and get it to Goodwin at the first opportunity. You're a smart girl, Sharon. I envy Goodwin such a good worker!"

Sick at heart, Sharon sank into a chair, tried desperately to recruit new arguments, new proofs of her innocence. She had to make Tom believe her.

"Not that I think you're going to have a chance to get any information to Goodwin," Tom went on, gnawing his pipe stem thoughtfully. "Our agents are planted thick as fleas on a dog's back around that cabin right now. Goodwin will take this load of stuff there to cache it for a few days. That's because the Tauen got in the way of a British torpedo a few days ago and she's held up for repairs. He's got most of the gang with him on the Ladybird," he went on as if he were thinking aloud, "because that fire he set in the boat was meant to distract police attention while he made a getaway."

And Dennis! Sharon wondered anxiously. Did he get away safely? Or had he been caught in that inferno? Shuddering, she shut her eyes as if to blot out that picture.

"As soon as you're sure they've hauled the goods into the cabin, well, give the signal and—the boys will close down so quick Goodwin won't know what hit him."

Good Idea

SHARON looked up. "That is, if Goodwin doesn't beat you to the draw. Goodwin isn't exactly slow, you know."

"You're absolutely right," Tom nodded. "In fact, that's the weak spot in this whole scheme. When we strike we've got to strike fast—or else."

"How do you know Goodwin isn't aware that you are out here or that your men are posted around the cabin?"

"I don't," Tom admitted blankly. "I only know that we've arrested the 'fishmen' who usually guard the place. We've had our eyes on those birds for weeks. My boys are going to pick them up late this evening—too late for Goodwin to get word of it."

"How will you know when they are in the cabin, when the steel has all been moved off the boat?" she demanded, sure now that she was on the trail of a good idea.

"Just have to guess at that," Tom shrugged. "We'll move in closer just before dawn. Then, if we can't see any life aboard the Ladybird, we'll trust to luck the rats are in the trap."

"Why didn't you have the coast guard intercept the Ladybird itself?"

Tom grinned. "Don't have time to get word to anybody. You'll remember I didn't get wise to the plan till I got to Goodwin's party last night! And Goodwin, the charming host, made it a little difficult for me to break away!"

"But you are up against hopeless odds this way, Tom," she argued. "What if your signal comes at the wrong moment? What if all the men you have posted up, the cove can't get to you fast enough to be of any real help?"

Tom's face went grave. "I don't know. I can only hope there's no hitch."

"I don't think it's such a risk!" Sharon cried, recalling the size of the gun Dennis had carried. "They are armed to the teeth and they'll shoot to kill. They already have those orders."

Tom nodded. "I know. My boys aren't playing with pop-guns either."

And Dennis in the midst of it. Did he realize now what the real story was? Did he too, understand his position as, unwitting tool of a treacherous enemy? Maybe that was what he had been trying to tell her back there in that cavernous warehouse.

But, she shook her head hopelessly; even then escape would have been too late. Tom had been convinced of her guilty part in the whole scheme right from the first. She tried to think back to every moment they had spent together. Surely, she wanted to believe, some of those moments he hadn't suspected her. Or at least, he'd suspended suspicion temporarily, she amended, flushing a little.

Now, could she make him believe her completely? Trust her ever again? He'd watched her make every effort of which she was capable to dupe him, to betray him, to make him believe her to be something she was not. Had she ruined for all times her chance to win his respect, his admiration, his—love?

COLE HILL

Cole Hill, Feb. 22—Word has come here of the death of Phil Nichols, who died in a Detroit hospital Saturday, February 14. He had a stroke several weeks ago and never recovered. He leaves his wife, Effie, and one daughter, Arlene, wife of Elmer Stoddard, of Jackson, Mich., and two sons, Amel and Joe Nichols, also of Jackson, Mich. Mr. Nichols and family were formerly residents of this place for many years, until their home here burned in 1912. Afterward they moved to Michigan, where they have since resided. The bereaved family have the sincere sympathy of their old friends and neighbors here.

Benton Van Guilder, of Grand Valley, was here Thursday on business.

Mrs. Glenn Eastman was a guest at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Charles Benedict, Saturday, on Ross Hill.

Miss Marian Eastman celebrated her birthday anniversary at her home here Wednesday, February 18. A bountiful birthday dinner was served, including two beautiful birthday cakes, to the following guests: Mrs. Norton Eastman and daughter, Lois Marie; Mr. and Mrs. George Hannah, of Livonia; Mr. and Mrs. Bernal Holmes and daughter, Patricia Ann, Torpedo, and Mr. and Mrs. Oren Eastman, of this place. Miss Eastman received many nice birthday gifts and cards. The guests returned at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Eastman many more happy birthdays.

Orrin Rowland, of Garland, was here on business Tuesday.

Steve Nozick celebrated his birthday anniversary Wednesday, February 18, at his home here on the Maricopa Ann road.

Assistant Mail Carrier Vern Dey, of Torpedo, came on the mail route Thursday. He was assisted by his daughter, Miss Roberta Dey.

Mr. and Mrs. Ed Williams and son, Ellis, of the Garland-Torpedo road, were Warren visitors Saturday.

Mrs. Ed Williams, of the Garland-Torpedo road visited her sister, Mrs. E. W. Cartwright, and family at Newton Square evening. Mrs. Cartwright has been ill at her home since last November.

Ralph Pike, of Tionesta, was a visitor here Sunday.

Miss Agnes Franko, who attends the Youngsville High school, visited at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Franko, over the weekend.

The Misses Doris Covell and Mildred Krogler, who attend high school at Youngsville, spent the weekend at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Covell and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Krogler, at Ross Hill.

Oren Eastman is working at Garland.

Miss Margaret Dyer, the Cole Hill school teacher, visited her parents Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dyer, at Youngsville over the weekend.

The Navy Department announced that in 1941 private shipyards in 28 states have been building vessels for the Navy.

Production of bone black, carbon black and lampblack is a $15,000,000 a year industry in the United States, according to manufacturers' reports to the Census.

Tea is pressed into blocks and used as money in parts of Mongolia.

Comic Artists and Old Cowhands

Jim Williams, left, and Fred Harman, who draw "Out Our Way" and "Red Ryder" for the Times-Mirror, get together on Williams' California ranch. Both men are famous for their portrayals of western life. Williams for his ranch cartoons and Harman for the hard riding hero who gives his name to the strip. Harman visited Williams after a trip to Hollywood, where Red Ryder has gone into the movies and is being starred on a radio network program.

Auxiliary Fire Service School To Hold First Session Tuesday Night

SPECIAL PRIZES TO BE GIVEN AT CARNIVAL HERE

A trio of valuable and attractive articles, up to the high standard always attained by the students who present the annual Warren High school indoor carnival, will be offered as door prizes Friday evening of this week as the student body presents its fifth annual carnival to the public.

Donated by the student council, a combination radio-victrola will be the major door prize on the list, with an electric clock, and a five pound box of candy from Hutchens, also to be awarded.

Everyone who purchases an admission ticket to the affair will also be given two tickets for the door prize, it was stated today.

The plan this year is to buy a single ticket in advance at which time the door prize tickets also will be given to the purchaser, and at the door his admission pastebord will be exchanged for a strip of five tickets that may be used at any part of the carnival.

The mammoth indoor show this year includes midway, sample fair, side shows, auditorium show, gym show and a featured musical comedy full of nonsensical wit, "Nutts to You," written by Harry A. Summers.

Russell

Russell, Feb. 27—The Women's Benefit Association held their regular business meeting at the home of Mrs. Gerald Hale Tuesday evening. Fourteen members were present. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Mabel Sechnest the last Monday in March.

Recent guests of Mrs. Anna Fuhrer were Mike Brugger, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Brugger of Westfield, Pa., John Fuhrer, Arnold Brugger and Frederick Fuhrer of Jamestown, Mrs. Margaret Aganapal and daughter Helen of Warren.

Mrs. Gerald Hale entertained the members of the A Number One Club at her home Thursday with fifteen members present. The next meeting will be held on March 12th at the home of Mrs. Clifford Kelley at which time the members and their husbands will observe the 26th club anniversary with a 6:30 o'clock dinner.

The Parent-Teachers Association met at the school house Thursday evening for the February meeting. President Mrs. Harry Randall presided. Vocal duet, Margaret and Marjory Ramsdell. Accompanied by Miss Roberts.

The orchestra under the direction of Supervisor of Music Mr. Melvin Bennett, gave several selections. The health committee reported. It was voted that the P. T. A. will sponsor the health movement by having the high school students examined. The Junior class won the prize in the attendance contest. Miss Marie Harrington gave a talk on Founders Day. Mrs. Brasington will be in charge of the March program. Refreshments and a social time were enjoyed.

The Day in Harrisburg

Senate reconvenes at 4 p. m.; the house at 9 p. m.

War powers bill and governor's proposed compromise str session's biggest controversy to date.

House to speed action on senate-approved anti-sabotage bill; willing to hold hearings if labor requests, says Democratic leaders.

Names of governor's appointees ready for vote in senate, with exception of Police Commissioner Adams and Milk Control Chief McKee.

Democratic chairman says presidential intervention only can create harmony in party primary; Republicans also struggling to avert splits.

Automobile rationing starts in Pennsylvania; few cars available and no provision made for defense workers needing autos to get to jobs.

Starting promptly at 7:30 o'clock tomorrow evening at the state armory building in Hickory street, the Auxiliary Fire Service School for Warren borough will hold its initial session of an eleven weeks' training period. Instruction for the 85 men enrolled will fit them for service during the national emergency and peace-time civilian needs later.

Burgess R. W. Steber will speak briefly to the men to inaugurate the instruction course which will be directed by Fire Chief Douglas G. Kropf, county fire warden under the state council of civilian defense, and instructed by Lieutenant Ernest Springer, of the local fire department. Assisting in special instruction will be Lieutenant Victor VerMilyea, only member of the Warren County Reserve Officers' Association not now in service and authority in gas and chemical warfare.

Business for tomorrow night will include organization of the school, explanation of fire chemistry and demonstration of chemical fire extinguishers. On successive Tuesday nights, through May 12, special topics will be taken up as follows:

March 10-17—Hose lines, nozzles and appliances

March 24—Rescue work, ladders, rope knots and smoke masks.

March 31—Ventilation, forcible entry, salvage and overhauling.

April 7—Incendiary bomb control and sabotage

April 14-21—First aid course.

May 5—War gas and chemical warfare.

May 12—Weather permitting, this evening will be devoted to outdoor drill with ladders, hose lines and other equipment.

According to Chief Kropf, the original period of training has been extended to meet the requirements of the Office of Civilian Defense at Washington. All persons completing the prescribed course will receive official Government Fire Service arm bands and identification cards.

Because of the importance of this training in case of any emergency, the utmost cooperation of every man enrolled is asked by defense and fire officials.

'4 STAR REVUE' IS COMING HERE

The famous "4 Star Revue," four shows in one, featuring the Power's Models, will appear at the Liberty theatre here one day only, Tuesday. Popular prices will prevail.

In addition to Power's Models, the program will include England's famed Carlton Comedy and its sensational Mad Wag Follies, featuring twenty comedians, all live dogs.

The music of Harry James and Henry Busse will be presented by Cal Gwin.

CROP AND FEED LOANS MAY BE OBTAINED HERE

Crop and feed loans for 1942 are now available to all farmers of Warren county and applications for these loans will be taken by I. J. Nealon, of Butler, field supervisor of the Farm Credit Administration, on Wednesday and Thursday, March 3 and 4, it was announced today.

Mr. Nealon's schedule in Warren county is as follows:

Wednesday, 9:00 a. m.—Youngsville post office.

Wednesday, 10:00 a. m.—Sugar Grove post office.

Wednesday, 11:00 a. m.—Russell post office.

Thursday, 9:00 a. m. to 10:30 a. m.—Law library on second floor of court house, Warren.

These loans are given to all farmers in order to aid them in purchasing for cash such items as fertilizer, lime, seeds, feed for livestock or making repairs to machinery. The interest rate is four percent.

Further information may be obtained from Mr. Nealon or by writing to the crop loan office, Box 454, Butler, Pa.

Dixie Flyer Ready For Southern Tour On Wednesday Night

The Dixie Flyer, that popular Chattanooga Choo Choo train of the Fun line, is scheduled to depart from the North Warren Community House Wednesday evening, March 4, promptly at 8:30. Aboard the train when it pulls out on track 23 will be a passenger list of 400, all bound on a Tennessee excursion to Muskeget Land.

When the party arrives at the southern destination it will make its stay at the plantation home of "Massa" Ray ("Logree") Reynolds. The high spot of the excursion will be an old time minstrel show presented there by a stellar cast of Dixieland entertainers featuring such popular favorites as "Doghouse" Trusler, "Sore Foot" Schlaack, "Alabama" and "Caroline" Cruickshank, "Bruder" Bogart, "Dixie" Sroden, "Bashful" Anderson and "Lonesome" Rock.

They will be assisted by a minstrel chorus of 35 deep south voices, and accompanied by a genuine Dixieland band, starring "Trombone Chris," virtuoso of the well-known tailgate, sludge-pump smear.

This overland cruise is being sponsored by the North Warren Civic Club and is under the personal direction of Cruise Director Russell Dietsch.

PROVEN ON BATAAN
Garand Rifle Fails to Suit Marine Corps.
National Rifle Association Joins in Criticism of Garand Rifle.
Experts Cite Inaccuracies in Garand Rifle as U. S. Orders Probe.

These were a few of the headlines during the great controversy over the Garand rifle in the summer of 1940.
Practically everything, it seemed, was wrong with the new weapon. A few months before it had been widely hailed as the most devastating shoulder-piece ever devised.

Then suddenly the nation was told that the rifle showed "amazing inaccuracies" even at mid-combat ranges of 300 yards. . . that fired at speed, it would get so hot no soldier could hold it. . . that when tested on the Mexican border it sanded up badly. . . that its mechanism required careful lubrication with graphite and that sand readily stuck to the lubricant. . . that because of the relatively poorer accuracy of the Garand, as compared with the Springfield rifle, the Marine Corps had materially lowered its qualification scores in order to maintain the morale of enlisted men.

Now we have a new witness. His name is Douglas
A. MacArthur. Reporting from the Bataan peninsula, General MacArthur tells the War Department the performance of the Garand has been "excellent," that the rifle operated with no mechanical defects and did not develop stoppages from dust or dirt. The Garand had been in almost constant action for as much as a week without cleaning or lubrication. MacArthur suggested no modifications in parts or assembly.

That report pretty well answers the critics, but it need not dam every last one of them. The Garand has been constantly improved, undoubtedly many improvements have been due to this type of criticism. At the same time, the Army is to be commended for sticking with the Garand and not tossing it into the pond, as some critics advocated.

MacArthur himself shares in this triumph for the new rifle. As Army chief of staff he insisted that the gun's calibre be changed to .30 so that its ammunition would conform with that of machine guns and the Springfield.

One of the things this meant was that the Philippine army did not have to be provided with ammunition
of several different sizes for its small arms.
MacArthur himself once found something to criticize about the production of the Garand. A change was made, and apparently all to the good.

The community is glad to welcome former pastors of two local churches who are here for the anniversary celebration of the Warren County Ministerial Association.
Dr. T. S. Dickson and family, now located at York, and Dr. C. T. Greer and family, of Meadville, have many friends who are pleased to greet them today.

Any person who says that March came in like a lion must be thinking of a very tame one.

Blackout and stay indoors tonight at nine!

LENTEN SERMONETTE
THE MYSTERIES OF THE CROSS
Rev. W. O. Brainard, Sugar Grove Methodist Church

"And when they were come to the place which is called Calvary, there they crucified Him."—Luke 23:33.
Again, it is Lent. It is different than any other in our history;
we face hard facts; and we face Christ and His cross; and Christianity is turning toward it.
As I turn again to the Gospel writings, how simple and easy it is told—the cross, soldiers, people, death—as though it was common place, yet as we read it again in the light and shadows of the day, there is a mystery there that will not help one stop reading it; it is more than a cross, or a man dying. It is why did He do it? Why in a world where dying is so common, for this Man's death to become a refuge for man?
He was not thinking just of death, when He cried out, "Let this cup pass." His was a greater task. He had to defeat again the tempter of the wilderness: now to strike at the very root of sin, not for himself, but for mankind, and give to man the assurance that in His power, we too could be victorious.
We pause, we think, why should He love me so? That too is a mystery. We just cannot answer it, but we know it is true.
Should we not hasten to tell to every man, woman, child, to come in humble penance before the Cross and in quiet meditation learn more of the mystery of divine love; and find a "peace that passeth understanding?" Amen.

but in so doing is not dumping it on ODHWS. It has been proposed to move John B. Kelly's physical fitness activities from OCD to ODHWS. Kelly has been asked to justify the existence of his program, but the last word was that he hadn't so far delivered the justification arguments (Mayris Chaney was in his organization), so the matter is still pending. The other frills of OCD will apparently not be transferred to anyone, but just quietly put out of their misery.
Governor McNutt is still boss of the shop which operates on a budget of $580,000 from presidential funds.
Next-to-the-top executive work
is done by a couple of others.

Charles P. Taft in charge of health and welfare, M. L. Wilson is also director of the extension service
in the Department of Agriculture,
so the active work is done by Dr.
Helen Mitchell, a professional nutritionist who is out to promote the idea that the country can and must eat its way to victory. Forty per cent of the country, she says, doesn't eat right, and is therefore suffering from "hidden hunger".
The nutrition division of ODHWS hasn't a large staff and it hasn't a large budget. Its job is largely to co-ordinate the work of all the organizations interested in nutrition and spread the word of what good nutrition amounts to through educational campaigns and telling other communities what one community has done to further the cause of right eating.
The word theoretically spread through state nutrition councils.
It's up to the state councils to pass
the word on to the local communities in the state, set up county or city nutrition councils and in this manner get everyone wised up on the food stamp plan, school lunches adult education in nutrition and food selection, and so on.
At the lowest organization level,
this should mean that someone in every community is running a nutrition course to tell the good woman who does the marketing and bends over the stove for your family how to buy and plan meals so you'll get the most good out of them. If there is a nutrition program under way in your community, this plan is working. If not, you are supposed to start complaining to the authorities.
Some of the local community programs are worth writing about.
In Springfield, Mass., the newspapers took up this nutrition idea and put it over. They started a campaign for hot meals for the night shift in the munitions plants,
with the result that a Red Cross canteen was opened up for the owl and lobster truck forces. There was a drive to "Pack Pep in Your Lunches." The lowly raw carrot was given a plug as something to prevent night blindness for aviators and truck drivers.
A Los Angeles baker often makes the "bricks" used in movie scenes. They are made of bread to prevent injuries to players.

MAN ABOUT MANHATTAN
By JACK STINNETT
WASHINGTON—The Capital in War-time:
The Red Cross says that since Pearl Harbor, more than 55,000 persons have donated to the nation's blood bank.
The following little item isn't intended to detract one bit from any of those. They've done their bit and more. But among them is a little group that deserves special mention in my book. Here's why:
I have never known a member of Congress to shy away from "helpful" publicity—that is, not until now. But in the Capitol, the number of congressmen who have volunteered of blood has reached such a level that Dr. G.
W. Calver, Congressional physician, has had to organize a Capitol branch of the blood bank. And one specific stipulation is that there is to be NO publicity about it.
Typical of the secrecy surrounding these donations is the case of Sen. Tom Connally, of Texas. 64 years old. The senator is no shrinking violet when it comes to getting his name on Page 1. But it was only by chance that it leaked out that he had been one of the first to get himself okayed. Today, if you ask him about his trip to the blood bank hospital, he'll tell you, "I don't know what you are talking about and besides don't you make out that contributing to the blood bank is a publicity stunt, because it isn't."
The Interstate Commerce Commission has had its share of complaints, but in Washington,

at least, it always has been known as one of the leaders in governmental economy. When the order went out that all agencies should conserve paper, ICC was the first to single-space and use both sides of the sheet.
The commission's latest economy touch is a braut. Each day,
a mailing clerk makes the rounds
and picks up the orders for delivery to western clients. In each section, these number from 20 to 150 sheets and it has been customary to hand them to the clerk, rolled up, and held with a rubber band. Now as the mail clerk receives them, the ICC clerk does a Houdini slip on the rubber band and drops it back into the box for use again.
MAURY MAVERICK, the stormy petrel of Texas politics, one-time congressman and former mayor of San Antonio,
has had a lot of offices in Washington and out, but I doubt if any of them can touch that 17-by-10 room he occupies in Temporary Building B (it was there in World War I, where his title is director of (state and municipal) government supplies.
If you know him well, he is sure to show you his "private kitchen." It consists of three drawers in the filing cabinet. One contains a set of pinkish dishes;
another, a plastic hot plate;
and the third, some canned goods
and staples.
Mrs. Maverick, he'll explain
proudly, bustles in at luncheon;
cooks up a meal for him and any business guests he may have; and washes the dishes down the hall
in a cubby-hole sink.

WASHINGTON IN WARTIME
By GEORGE TUCKER
NEW YORK.—The greatest show
in New York is a show that goes on all the time. It's a front seat at the World War. If you're a kid it costs a dime. If you're an adult it costs a quarter. But infant or octogenarian it's a thrill of a lifetime.
This show has no beginning or end. You can come in when you want to and go out the same way.
It's in Rockefeller Center. It's between 50th and 49th streets on 6th avenue. It's the New York
Museum of Science and Industry.
Don't let that word museum discourage you. There's nothing musty or dusty about it. It's the tools of war as they are used today. You like Messerschmitt?
You like Heinkel? You like Spitfires and Hurricanes?
YOU walk in and see a German parachute with six hundred pounds of high explosives dancing from it. You see harbor mines and magnetic mines. You see paravanes, which look like great evil fish, and you see torpedoes, the kind that are launched from submarines and destroyers.
I saw the wing of a Hawker Hurricane that saw service at Dunkirk. It had been riddled by machinegun fire. It got safely back to England, and when the wing was replaced the old one was sent to New York.
I saw the three-bladed propeller
of the first bomber ever shot down over England. Though the balde were of heavy steel, there were bullet holes through them
that you could put your finger through.
I saw the twisted, torn plates
of a British battleship that had

The Moose lodge has elected the following officers: Dictator, O. C.
Summerson; vice dictator, Harry Follett; prelate, Harry Miller;
secretary, Carl J. Dibble; treasurer,
Fred Cogswell; trustee, A. J.
Koebeley; delegates, M. D. Wheeler and R. A. Greenlund.
The St. Joseph's Orphan's Home
Building Fund committee of Holy Redeemer parish met last evening and all arrangements were made for the drive for $2,000 that will begin next Monday.
Both local theatres have good bills today. At the Strand is "The Princess of New York" with David Powell, while at the Library the feature is "White and Unmarried"
starring Thomas Meighan.
Mrs. Harold Wickstrom and son
"Tommy" left this morning for a few days' visit with Cleveland relatives.

The estimated cost of moving from the hillside back of Oakland cemetery in Pleasant township to some point in the borough the famous old blockhouse, used during the Warren centenary celebration of 1895, will be around $500, the committee has announced.
The Warren debating team will meet North East in a dual meet this afternoon. Local debaters will be Emil Meacham, Leah Waxman, Israel Shulman, Howard Grotzinger,
Florence Armstrong, Gretchen Knabbe, John Lopez and Paul Gary.
Many inquiries are being answered in the office of the Times-Mirror regarding the developments in the Lindbergh kidnapping case.
Warren people seem to be staging a contest to see who can suggest the most severe punishment for the abductors in event of their capture.
Among the political announcements appearing today are those of A. W. Mumford, W. F. Bennett and J. H. West for general assembly.

ANOTHER "E" FOR THE DRAVO CORPORATION

Pittsburgh, March 2—(P)—The Dravo Corporation of this city on Thursday will be awarded the all-navy "E" flag for the third time for progress in ship and crane building for the United States Navy.

A submarine chaser will go down the ways at the company's High naval officials headed by Admiral William Carlisle Walts, USN, Ret., will attend. Other speakers will include Senator James J. Davis and County Commissioner John J. Kane.

Backward tendencies prevailed at the start and, while offerings never were urgent, recessions of fractions to a point or so ruled near the fourth hour.

The critical position of United Nations forces in the southwest Pacific, brokers said, combined with further ship sinkings in the Atlantic to stem the mild recovery tide which got under way last week.

Business developments, more encouraging than otherwise, generally were ignored. Commodities retreated.

Stocks under water must of the time included U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Santa Fe, Union Pacific, General Motors, Chrysler, Westinghouse, U. S. Rubber common and preferred, American Electric, Du Pont, Anaconda, American Telephone and Standard Oil (N.J.).

Did You Recently Move to Warren..?

While funeral service may not be one of the early necessities, it is well to know something about the firms offering such service in Warren.

To that end we invite requests for information. There is nothing that must be kept secret about our business. Those who foresee the need for funeral service may make advance arrangements if that is their desire.

If burial is to be at a place of former residence we can complete the service, either with our cars or by rail shipment.

Write or phone for a copy of our booklet. It is free.
